PURIFY YOUR BLOOD.

Impurities in the Mood produce diseases, Bodily and mental health depend upon a healthy condition of the blood. The blood, particularly in the spring and during the hot animare months, becomes clogged with impurities, which poison it and generate disease. A harmless blood purifler, without a particle of mineral poison in it, such as mercury or potash, is necessary to remove these impurities and to restore the healthy tone of mind and body. The best purifier and tonic known to the world it Swift's Specific (6.5.8.). In regard to its wonderful purifying and tonic powers we give a few testimoulals as follows:

BOWSER'S EXPERIENCE

"Why, Mrs. Bowser, there isn't enough work in this house to keep your blood circulating properly!"
"I never get through before mid-after-

"Hower set through before mid-afternoon."

"Well, it's your own fault. If I set out to chop wood with the axe-handle between my toes I can't expect to make much headway. There's something I wrong in your system of taking hold of the work. My mother could do up all this work in an hour."

"Did she die of smartness?"

"What?" No inuendoes, Mrs. Bowser! I say it's because you have no system to your work, and I can prove it."

"How?"

"I'll show you in a day or two. There's nothing mean about me. If I can learn you anything I'll be glad to do it."

Next morning, as soon as we left the idining room, he pulled off his coat and hung it up and said:

"Now, then, I'm going to do this work by system. You lie down on the lounge and take your comfort, and I'll have everything cleaned up in one hour by the clock.

I obeyed orders, and he stood in the center of the room, looked around him for a spell, and then said:

"The first thing, of course, is to sweep and pick up things."

He wheeled the chairs back in a way to make the castors rattle, grabbed the papers off the floor and tucked 'em into

He wheeled the chairs back in a way to make the castors rattle, grabbed the papers off the floor and tucked 'em into the waste basket, and then ran for the carpet-sweeper. He pushed it twice around the center table in a circle, kicked a foot stool into a corner and triumphantly observed:

"Just four minutes, and all is done!"

"You must wipe off the windows."

"Oh, yes. Now, what else?"

"Dust the wood-work."

His four minutes had lengthened into forty before he paused to wipe the sweat from his brow on the tidy and said:

said: "Well, I'm all through and it's only

"Well, I'm all through and it's only nine o'clock."
"You must take the feather duster and go over the pictures, Mr. Bowser."
"All right. What else?"
The rugs must be taken out on the back steps and dusted."
"Yes; what else?"
"Dust those door curtains."
"Anything more?"

"Dust those door curtains."

"Anything more?"
"Shake down the two coal stoves and call the girl to fill 'em up. Then you want to wipe off the stoves."

When that had been done he began to figure up the time, but I said:
"Those zine boards must be washed and dried. Then you can take a wet rag and wipe the door knobs. Then the cigar sahes must be emptied from the holder, and some matches put into the box. Then you must bring in the broom and sweep under the heavy chairs and in the corners of the room. After that I will tell you what else to do."

It was a hard dose to swallow, but he got it down and finally inquired what else should be done. It was then after 10 o'clock,
"Well, the baby comes next,"
"What's the matter of the baby?"
"You must wash his hands and face, change his apron, comb his hair and doctor that sore on his toe."
"Do you do that every morning?"
"Every sincle morning."

"Do you do that every morning?"
"Every single morning."
"Every single morning."
"He got the crash towel from the kitchen, made some soap-suds of bar-soap and scoured baby until he got up a squall which lasted half an hour. It took him another half hour to put on the apron, and when he came to the sore toe he applied a little axle-grease. I felt sorry for the poor thing, but I was determined not to interfere. It was now eleven o'clock, and the girl came in to get her order for and the girl came in to get her order for dinner. I turned her over to Mr. Bow-

When she had gone he said to me:
"There, now, the work is all done, and I haven't been three hours about it. I can do it in half the time to-morrow.

"But this is only one room, Mr. Bowser, You will now take the hall."

"It must be swept and dusted. Then you take the parlor. Then comes the room."

"Well, I'll show you that I can do it!"
he said, after a moment's hesitation, and
by dinner time he had finished the hall.
When we sat down to the meal there was some very tough steak, some potatioes with the hides on, and a loaf of bread and a hunk of butter sat in the centre of the table. Mr. Bowser grew white as he shoved back and asked what it meant!

"And I always spend at least twenty minutes plauning the dinner with her!" I added.

Mr. Bowser nearly choked as he gulped it down. I expected he would start down as soon as he left the table, but he didn't. He took off his coat and attacked the upstairs work. It was 3 o'clock before he finished, and as he came down with his hair askew and his collar wilted I said:

"There's about an hour's patching and mending, and baby wants to be rocked to sleep. Then you can dress yourself to receive callers or to go shopping."

Fatally Burned.

JEFFERSONVILLE, IND., April 27.—Walter Seivers, a twenty-one year man, and Charles Davis, colored, a two year man, were almost burned to death at the Southern prison last evening. Seivers and Davis are cupalo tenders in the foundry. At pouring off time the tamping bar became chilled and could not be removed from the aperture through the molten iron flows. The only remedy was to knock out the bottom, and this being done the molten iron, 1,000 pounds or more, fell with a splush. The clothing of the two tenders, who had not retired a proper distance, became ignited from the iron and in an instant they were enveloped in flames. They are like wild men through the yards and it was with great difficulty they were caught and the flames extinguished. Both are burned from head to foot, and will, it is thought, die.
